

The Second Scientific Day of The Clinical Pharmacy

The Dean of the Faculty of Pharmacy; Dr. Salma Bukhatwa was invited to the Second Scientific day of the Clinical Pharmacy at Benghazi Medical Center which was held on 25/03/2018. Dr. Bukhatwa delivered a speech during the conference, in the presence of a group of pharmacists, leaders of the Benghazi Medical Center and many other representatives of pharmaceutical companies and medical equipment.

Many topics have been covered in the Dean`s speech including the importance of the program and its ability to meet the actual needs of the local labor market and the possibility of creating new job opportunities in the field of pharmacy profession, while not forgetting the ability of graduates of the Pharm D program in the Libyan International University to engage in the regional and international labor markets. As presented by the Dean of the Faculty of Pharmacy the strategies of learning and training in the program that currently implemented at the Libyan International Medical University as one of the most important and latest programs offered by the University.

